1	I think we should evaluate how private school children are faring having returned to in-person learning. If they have generally remained healthy, CPS might consider following suit. Also, if CPS students return to school, please consider full days of learning. It would be difficult for parents who work full time to pick up their children from school midday.
2	6 plus hours of screen time is unrealistic and inhuman for children. Especially children with special needs, (31% of CPS students are KDW with special needs) SODQ IRU WKH XSFRPLQJ \HDU LI ZH now being jeopardized due CPS remote learning plan. You all need to review the existing schedule/demand we are putting on students, parents and teachers!
3	The Following is a Petition I started on Change.org:

One week into E-learning and it is a disaster. The expectations from the district put upon students and the working parents of this city are unrealistic. As working parents, We can not forgo our sources of income to be tethered to our young and G L Y H U V H O H D U Q H S by CPS kids. Being everyone be present and accounted for for 6 hours a day.

We need the flexibility to do the work on our own schedule. The youngest children whose learning you are responsible for are developmentally unable to hold their attention span on a

To the Chicago Board of Education:

I'm a parent of a student at Jones College Prep. My child is enrolled in an Advanced Placement class for the first time, and I discovered that simply in order to participate in the class and receive instruction, she needs to create an account on the College Board's website.

To create an account, the student, most of them legal minors, are told to click a box and enter into a contract with the College Board to accept their Terms of Service and Privacy Policy. This contract is spread across at least 10 webpages and requires that the student wero

And the fact that students---in order to receive the full benefits of the education being offered to them by the school district---are forced into a legal contract with a third-party who is known to illegally sell student data is unconscionable.

A new contract between the College Board and CPS is under negotiation right now; this board approved the agreement in March (Board report 20-0325-PR2). 7KHFRQMDFWKRXGQRWEH VJCHGXQMDKLVLVXHLVUHVRYHG Students should not be forced to sign any separate agreements with the College Board to take AP courses or tests. The College Board should not be able to sell any of the information it collects from CPS students in school or via websites that schools instruct students to use.
